

FROM THE EDITOR-IN-CHIEF

Ladies and Gentlemen,

We would like to present you with the fourth issue of our journal from 2018 for your reading pleasure. The issue will treat you to reading covering many areas of law, revealing a mosaic of research interests of the authors of papers we continue to receive. We feature articles discussing the field of public and private law, there is also a text bringing philosophy and law together. It is a multi-thematic issue.

The next issues will appear very soon, they are virtually ready. According to the autumn announcement, volume 1/2019 will focus on the matter of constitutionalism. It features publications by authors from five different countries. These are highly original articles, which are bound to spark a lively academic discussion. Since we have received really many good papers dealing with the issue of constitutionalism, more than we can feature in volume 1/2019, we intend to raise the issue again in issue 3/2019. Meanwhile, issue 2/2019 concentrates on the fascinating topic of finance of the future – the volume is already in preparation.

Of course, we are open to new submissions dealing with original matters. They are always welcome in our journal, and can be featured in e.g. the Miscellaneous section. We also publish scientific reviews, standard reviews, and opinions.

Our journal is open to authors from all over the world. We are glad to see more and more papers from outside Poland being submitted.

We are always committed to improving the quality of the published articles, by e.g. partnering – successfully – with acknowledged reviewers.

The journal is published in two language versions, which makes the achievements of Polish researchers more popular in the international environment as well as translates into a greater number of foreign authors featured. We also accept papers in French, German, and Spanish.

December 2018 marked the initiation of the activity of the “Otwarte forum dyskusyjne »Krytyki Prawa«” [“Open Discussion Forum of the »Critique of Law«”].

Prof. W. Hoff features a short account of this scientific event in this issue of our journal.

We will also gain a wide presence in social media in the upcoming days.

I would like to thank all the authors, reviewers, editors, translators, proof-readers involved...

We are also happy to say that our journal has been deservedly recognised in the 1st edition of the "Wsparcie dla czasopism" ["Support for Journals"] competition.

I do hope you enjoy this issue. Please feel encouraged to take part in the discussion and to send your submissions.
